

visionvirginia
WEEK of PRAYER
SEPTEMBER 13-20

BUILDING A CHURCH PLANTING
PIPELINE

Sometimes God's plan for reaching people begins in the most unexpected ways.

When Pastor William Samadder fled religious persecution in Bangladesh and arrived in Northern Virginia, he came seeking safety for his family after years of ministry among an unreached people group. What he could not have known was that God was already preparing a new mission field for him - right where he landed.

Through a connection at Pillar Church in Dumfries, William met Pastor Colby Garman, who quickly recognized both William's heart for the Gospel and the growing Bengali population throughout Northern Virginia. Together, they began exploring how God might use William to reach Bengali-speaking families who had little connection to a local church.

With support from SBC of Virginia church planting resources and Vision Virginia funding, William entered church planter training and began gathering people for Bible study, fellowship, and worship. What started as a small gathering in a home is now a developing church plant with a core group of nearly 40 people and regular outreach throughout the Bengali community.

"There is no Bengali-speaking church in Virginia," William shared. "I believe it was God's plan for me to be here." Today, many are studying Scripture, worshipping together, and hearing the Gospel in their heart language.

For Pastor Colby, the impact of partnership is clear. "Thank you for giving through Vision Virginia and making it possible for churches and planters like William to answer God's call and reach people we wouldn't be able to reach unless we partner together."

Through the Vision Virginia State Missions Offering, SBCV churches are helping build a church planting pipeline that reaches new communities, develops leaders, and expands the Gospel across Virginia.

visionvirginia
WEEK of PRAYER
SEPTEMBER 13-20

BUILDING A CHURCH PLANTING
PIPELINE

Sometimes God's plan for reaching people begins in the most unexpected ways.

When Pastor William Samadder fled religious persecution in Bangladesh and arrived in Northern Virginia, he came seeking safety for his family after years of ministry among an unreached people group. What he could not have known was that God was already preparing a new mission field for him - right where he landed.

Through a connection at Pillar Church in Dumfries, William met Pastor Colby Garman, who quickly recognized both William's heart for the Gospel and the growing Bengali population throughout Northern Virginia. Together, they began exploring how God might use William to reach Bengali-speaking families who had little connection to a local church.

With support from SBC of Virginia church planting resources and Vision Virginia funding, William entered church planter training and began gathering people for Bible study, fellowship, and worship. What started as a small gathering in a home is now a developing church plant with a core group of nearly 40 people and regular outreach throughout the Bengali community.

"There is no Bengali-speaking church in Virginia," William shared. "I believe it was God's plan for me to be here." Today, many are studying Scripture, worshipping together, and hearing the Gospel in their heart language.

For Pastor Colby, the impact of partnership is clear. "Thank you for giving through Vision Virginia and making it possible for churches and planters like William to answer God's call and reach people we wouldn't be able to reach unless we partner together."

Through the Vision Virginia State Missions Offering, SBCV churches are helping build a church planting pipeline that reaches new communities, develops leaders, and expands the Gospel across Virginia.