

A Contagious Christian

I have never been one that was ever sick — maybe a cold here and there, but never constantly sick. Then, when I was hired at my first job as a school teacher, I was sick all the time. It seemed like that entire first year, I barely would get over one sickness before I was getting another one. It went this way the entire school year. When I went to the doctor, he told me that I was being exposed to things I had never been around before and that was what was happening to me.

This made me think, are we this contagious with our Christianity. Do we strive to pass along what we have to others or do we go around seeking to keep it from others? We see this happening with the people that were scattered and came to Antioch, where they shared the Good News and it is said, “The Lord’s hand was with them, and a great number of people believed and turned to the Lord.” Oh may it be that we, too, are this contagious and those we come into contact with will also turn to the Lord.
