Unity. Humility. Spiritual Gifts.
Josh Daffern

For a football team to be successful, they need to be united. They need to be playing from the same playbook and running the same play. They also need to be humble. They need to be willing to do their part to help the overall team succeed, even if that means that they aren't always getting the ball.

Each member of the team needs to utilize their gifts. If a player is a 350-lb giant of a man, he can try all he wants to be a wide receiver and run past the other team. He'd help the team a lot more if he parked on the offensive line and became a wall that no one else could break through.

In the same way, we have been given a unique set of spiritual gifts, hand-picked by God and empowered with the same power that raised Jesus from the dead, inside everyone who believes. When we discover, lean into and leverage our spiritual gifts, that's when we make an impact in our community. What are your gifts? How are you using them?
