

Ministry: God-Glorifying or Self-Promoting?

Ministry: God-Glorifying or Self-Promoting?

ADAM SCHWENK

ADAM SCHWENK

“Do nothing out of selfish ambition or conceit, but in humility consider others as more important than yourselves.”
(Philippians 2:3 ESV).

“Do nothing out of selfish ambition or conceit, but in humility consider others as more important than yourselves.”
(Philippians 2:3 ESV).

Ministry is full of opportunities to lead others. Whether you are leading them to a deeper understanding of Christ or acting as the head of a service project for the community, ministry and leadership go hand-in-hand. However, where there is leadership, pride tends to follow. One must be aware of the constant danger of pride in ministry because pride leads to discouragement, broken relationships, and hardened hearts. As leaders, we must follow Christ's example in humility as displayed in Philippians 2.

Ministry is full of opportunities to lead others. Whether you are leading them to a deeper understanding of Christ or acting as the head of a service project for the community, ministry and leadership go hand-in-hand. However, where there is leadership, pride tends to follow. One must be aware of the constant danger of pride in ministry because pride leads to discouragement, broken relationships, and hardened hearts. As leaders, we must follow Christ's example in humility as displayed in Philippians 2.

Before every action of ministry, check your motives and use discernment as to why you may be acting in such a way. Are you listening to the Spirit or yourself? Is this God-glorifying or self-promoting? A ministry led by the Lord is immeasurably greater than any ministry led by man. Let us lay down our pride in ministry and serve the people around us with hearts surrendered to God. “Let each of you look not only to his own interests, but also to the interests of others” (Philippians 2:4 ESV).

Before every action of ministry, check your motives and use discernment as to why you may be acting in such a way. Are you listening to the Spirit or yourself? Is this God-glorifying or self-promoting? A ministry led by the Lord is immeasurably greater than any ministry led by man. Let us lay down our pride in ministry and serve the people around us with hearts surrendered to God. “Let each of you look not only to his own interests, but also to the interests of others” (Philippians 2:4 ESV).

November 1, 2020
Devotion

 Coordinates with Resources: 11A

November 1, 2020
Devotion

 Coordinates with Resources: 11A